Man Jumps White House Fence

(CNN)A man is in custody after jumping over a White House fence while the first family was inside celebrating Thanksgiving, officials said. Joseph Caputo scaled a fence on the North Lawn at 2:45 p.m., according to Secret Service spokesperson Robert Hoback. The jumper was immediately apprehended and taken into custody. According to two CNN photojournalists who witnessed the incident, the man was carrying an envelope, had on a blue shirt and white pants and was cloaked in an American flag. They said the officers who detained him had their guns drawn and were accompanied by K-9 units. Vanessa Pena, an intern on Capitol Hill, was playing tourist with her twin sister who was in town for Thanksgiving. "We were just standing there and the man came up behind us," she told CNN. "I heard him take a deep breath and say, 'All right, let's do this.'" Pena said the man "ran through" she and her sister before he jumped over a barricade, and then the fence. Though the White House issued an official "all clear" about two hours after the episode began, the north and south fence lines remained temporarily closed Thursday evening.

International News-Significant Events

Turkey requests meeting with Russia

(CNN)In the end, this does not look like World War III. Scary as the shooting down of a Russian warplane was -- especially by Turkey, a NATO member signs emerged Friday that some of the leaders involved are working to ease tensions between the two countries. For one thing, Turkish Prime Minister Ahmet Davutoglu, who is often characterized as the friendly face of his government, has published a conciliatory essay. In the article, published Friday in the Times of London, Davutoglu says the shooting down by Turkey this week "was not -- and is not -- an act against a specific country. "If Turkey and Russia are at odds, he says, it will only benefit ISIS. Turkish Prime Minister Ahmet Davutoglu "While the measures to defend our territory will remain in place, Turkey will work with Russia and our allies to calm tensions," Davutoglu writes. And beyond that, the Kremlin said Friday that Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan had requested a meeting with Russian counterpart Vladimir Putin on Monday on the sidelines of the Climate Change Conference in Paris. Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov told CNN that Putin "was informed of this request," but gave no word on whether the request would be accepted. Peskov also confirmed that Erdogan tried to reach Putin the day that the Russian warplane was shot down "probably 7-8 hours after the incident, not earlier." Davutoglu's tone, and Erdogan's request for a personal meeting stand in stark contrast to the previous bellicosity displayed by Putin and Erdogan. The two had engaged in days of chest-thumping rhetoric, with each demanding the other apologize. And Russia has started to implement de facto economic sanctions to punish Turkey. Turkey will not apologize for downing the Russian fighter jet that Turkey says violated its airspace near the Syrian border, Erdogan said Thursday in an exclusive CNN interview. "I think if there is a party that needs to apologize, it is not us," Erdogan said. "Those who violated our airspace are the ones who need to apologize. Our pilots and our armed forces, they simply fulfilled their duties, which consisted of responding to violations of the rules of engagement. I think this is the essence." He went a step further in a meeting with community leaders in Ankara. "If the same violation occurs today, Turkey has to react the same way," he said. Turkey has said it shot down the Russian warplane Tuesday only after it ignored several warnings and entered Turkish airspace. Russia has contested the claim, and its rescued co-pilot Capt. Konstantin Murakhtin told state media that "there were no warnings -- not via the radio, not visually." Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov has said the downing of the Russian jet appeared to be "a planned provocation."

SITUATION SUMMARY

Summerset Apartments Incident, Fresno, Fresno County

There was a loss of natural gas to the Summerset Apartment complex near Fresno Street and Clinton in the City of Fresno. The complex has 220 units and houses 1,500 – 1,800 residents who are primarily southeast Asian refugees – about 25 of the units are Section 8. The complex has a private gas distribution system that has once supply point from PG&E. About 10 days ago the natural gas was turned off to make repairs. On Friday, 11/20/15, the City became aware of the complexity of the repairs needed and confirmed that large portions of the gas lines will not hold pressure. The residents rely on gas for heat, hot water and drying clothes. Repairs are estimated to take 3 weeks. The first priority is to ensure life-safety issues are addressed. The concern is residents will bring in portable gas appliances. The City Fire Department will have a 24 hour fire watch onsite until all detectors are installed.

- At 1423 hours on 11/26/15 the Cal OES Inland Duty Officer confirmed that the mobile showers and kitchen are on-scene and will be there for the next 3 weeks.
- On 11/24/15, the City of Fresno determined that a shelter will not be needed.
- The City is in the leadership role with Red Cross serving as technical assistance, support and convening of necessary partners to support. County OES is not planning to activate at this time.
- Fresno Interdenominational Refugee Ministries (FIRM) is a local partner, with facilities adjacent to the apartment complex, that ARC has positioned in a lead role for feeding. ARC has been supporting this partner with food and staff and is looking to local churches to assist as well.
- Southern Baptist will train FIRM on how to run the kitchen and cook culturally appropriate meals. ARC has a local partner that will help develop a suitable menu.
- Currently, ARC believes approximately 10 medically sensitive individuals have been identified. Department of Public Health (DPH) has been asked to identify newborns or others with health issues.
- Residents speak various dialects of Hmong, Vietnamese, Cambodian, and Laotian. DPH has offered to support the project with translators and will reach out to Behavioral Health and Social Services to see if they have resources.
- On 11/25/15 at 1722 hours the California State Warning Center (CSWC) received two unsigned Resolutions from the City of Fresno declaring the existence of a local emergency due to an inoperable natural gas line at 2103 N. Angus Street, Fresno, California. There are no requests for State assistance.

SITUATION SUMMARY

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought.

Weather of Concern

- A Freeze Warning is in effect for the San Joaquin Valley from 2 AM through 10AM today. Temperatures are expected to drop to below 32 degrees for several hours and could result in damage to crops. The conditions are expected to remain this evening through Saturday morning as well, so a Freeze watch has also been issued for late this evening through Saturday morning.
- A cold air mass will remain in place through the weekend, with near-freezing and sub-freezing conditions during the overnight and early morning hours for parts of the area. Hard Freeze conditions are likely for the Antelope Valley, Cuyama Valley, and interior valleys of San Luis Obispo County tonight through this morning, while sub-freezing temperatures are likely in the Santa Ynez Valley and the Ojai Valley. Freeze and Hard Freeze Warnings are in effect for many of these areas. Frost is also likely on the Central Coast, where there is a Frost Advisory tonight through this morning. The coldest nights will likely be tonight and Saturday night, when additional Freeze and Hard Freeze Warnings will be needed, along with more Frost Advisories.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

Dry and unseasonably cold weather will persist through the weekend. A period of light rain will be possible during the day Monday.

Medford Weather:

A quiet, but cold, period is in store for the forecast area through this weekend. Changes are expected early next week, and if long term model solutions are to be believed, that will be the beginning of an extended period of wet and windy weather for our region. However, confidence remains too low for certainty in any details of the long term forecast.

Reno Weather:

Cold low pressure will remain over the great basin region through Saturday. Well below normal temperatures and periods of light snow showers are expected through the weekend. Any additional accumulation will be light, but travel impacts remain possible through Saturday. There is a chance for additional activity next week, but confidence remains low at this point.

San Francisco Weather:

Dry and cool weather can be expected through the weekend. Temperatures will begin to moderate early next week. There is also a chance of rain beginning late Monday.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Mainly dry conditions into this weekend with cold morning lows. There is uncertainty in the forecast for next week. The next significant system comes ashore next Wednesday/Thursday, but the timing has been changing.

Hanford Weather:

Low pressure will remain over the great basin today and Saturday before moving east on Sunday. This will keep the threat of afternoon showers and snow showers over the sierra, however dry weather will prevail across the Central California interior lower elevations through the weekend with patchy late night and morning frost and fog in the San Joaquin Valley. Temperatures will average slightly below normal through the period.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

There is a possibility of precipitation today for Los Angeles and Ventura counties. The cold low will keep temperatures below normal through Sunday. Then a high should move in by Monday for near normal temperatures for most of next week. An upper low to our north on Thursday may bring possible precipitation for Santa Barbara and Northward.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

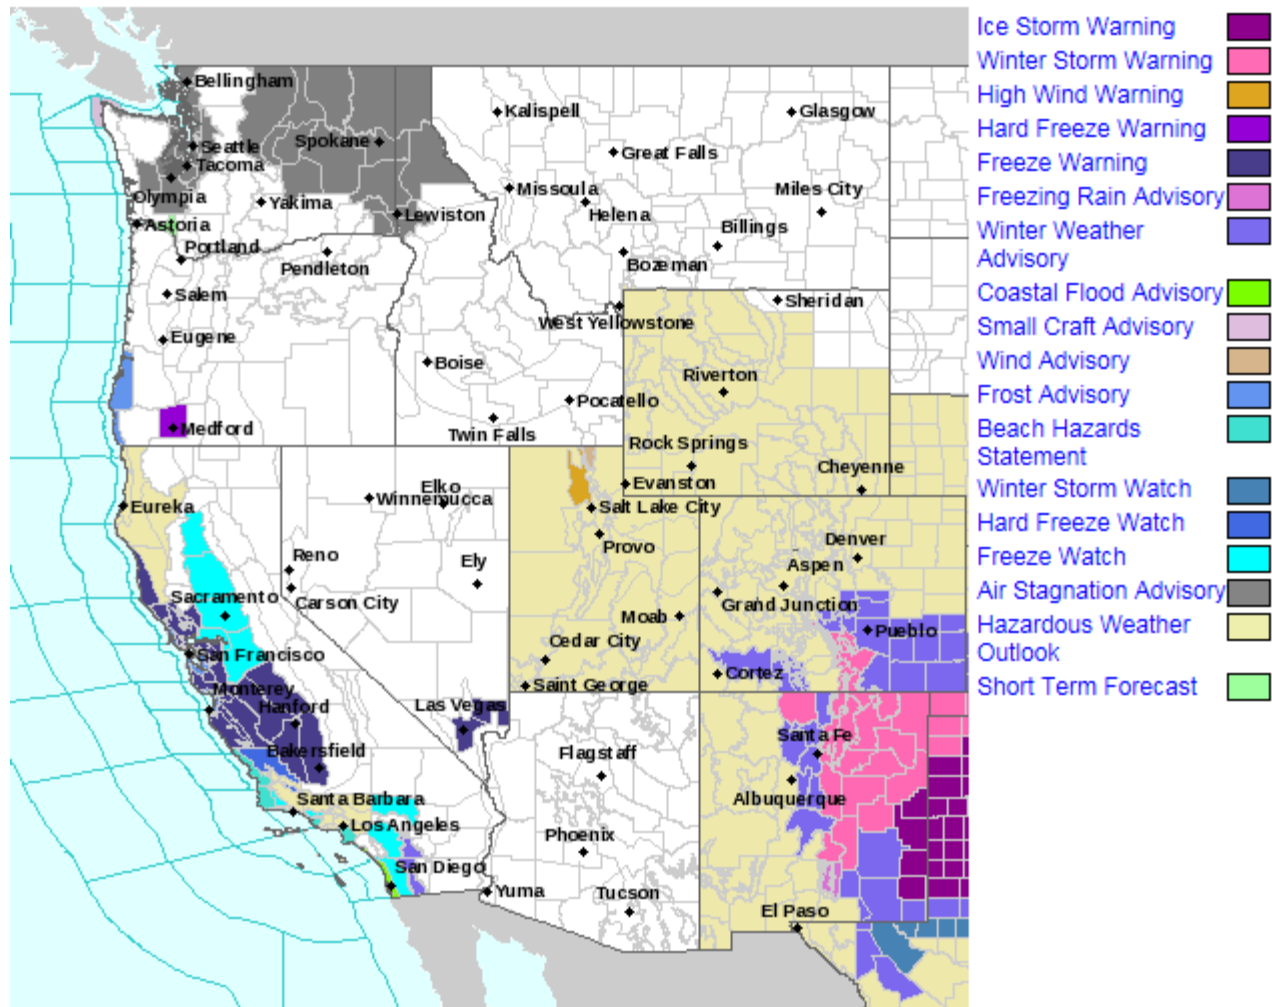

A cold low pressure system centered over the great basin will keep the weather very cool or downright cold through the holiday weekend. Occasional showers will continue today tapering off towards evening for along and west of the mountains. Several inches of new snowfall are likely in the mountains around 4000 feet or higher mainly in the San Diego and riverside county mountains where a Winter Weather Advisory remains in effect. The nights will be very cold this weekend with below freezing temperatures likely in valleys and desert areas. Dry and warmer next week as low pressure drifts East and weak offshore flow once again prevails over our region.

Southeast California Weather:

A cool pacific weather system will remain across the Southwestern United States into the weekend bringing below normal temperatures and occasional clouds. Slightly below normal temperatures will persist into early next week while gradually warming back to near normal for the middle of next week. Dry weather should persist through much of next week.
